In His Eagerness to Get Away Groom Was Nearly Drowned.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
BALTIMORE, M.D., Sept. 5.—Though married only two days, John Edward Galleway had already become so weary of wedded life that he this afternoon deserted his young bride, who was Miss Simpson, of Halwood, Accomac county, Va. In his eagerness to get away he fell overboard and narrowly escaped drowning.

Manager and the Seceders.
Manager Thomas S. Gore, of the Imperial Opera Company, and the greater number of the members of that organization left Sunday evening for Naw York, after patching up a gruce with some of the members of the company who were attempting to attach the receipts of the company here.

Before leaving the city, Manager Gore penned the following note to The Times-Dispatch:

Near Fayetteville.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
FAYDITEVILLD, N. C., Sept. 5.—vesterday morning, a little after daylight, as D. P. Beard, sectionmaster on the Allantic Coast Line Railway, was going down the line, he found the dead body of a white man alongside the track, not far from Luray Station, four miles north of this city.

Acting Coroner Dr. A. S. Rone was notified, and he found that the man had received a fearful blow on the left side of the head, bad bruises on the left side of the head, bad bruises on the left side of his body and cuts on his hands and arms. The stranger, who is supposed to have fallen from one of the night trains, was apparently about thirty years old, were new trousers of the uniform of the regular army and an army hat, but there was nothing in his pockets by which he could be identified. The remains were brought to the city and carried to the undertaker's.

for all that is best in minstrelsy. The performance of yesterday was no ex-ception to this rule, for the entertain-

Al. G. Field and Billy Clark, the latter a new member of the company, were the featured end men, and both furnished a lot of laugh-producing material fresh

Mr. Fleid's references to the political situation and politics in general were very amusing.

Reese Prosser is again at the head of the vocal contingent, which this year includes a double quintette. The scenic presentation "In the Shadow of St. Paul's" as produced by Mr. Prosser and the other vocalists, was quite pretty.

Tommy Donnelly is a familiar figure on the end, and he made merry after his own fashion. Doc Quigley, another one of the regular forces of Mr. Fleid, has his legs in just as good training as ever, and his dancing was one of the features of the first part.

In this ollo the Two Avolas did a unique acrobatic act that was exceedingly elever. The Quaker City Quartette made good music, and Carnalla and Eddle, comedy jugglers, did a capital act.

Billy Clark, in a monologue, kept the audience in the best of humor for twenty minutes. The closing number, "While Old Glory Waves," appealed to the patriotism of the audience and was much applauded. It was very pretty, and was well executed.

The entire performance was pleasing and an audience that almost tested the capacity of the Academy, witnessed it.

THE BIJOU OPENS.

Hal Reid's sensational melodrama.
"Alone in the World." opened the Bijou yesterday afternoon, before an audience that illed every seat in the playhouse, and occupied all the available standing room. The play is full of startling situations and climaxes that work an audience up to a high pitch of excitement. It is just what it pretends to be—melodrama in every line and every sentence. The production is well equipped with scenic effects, which add a great deal to the attraction. The lovee in New Orleans and the banking house in Canal Street were the best of the sottings. The attempted robbery of the bank and the rescue of little Robin wrought the audience up to a great pitch of enthusiasm. Sydney Carlyle, as Robin Hadley, did excellent work. For a street gamin, however, the author has given him some very unusual speeches. In the fourth act there is a scene quite out of the ordinary, lit is that in which mother and son grapple with a man, using nature's weapons in the attack. All three engage in a fist punching, hair pulling fight, which looks very realistic and quite unlike the usual stage scene.

"Alone in the World," judging from its reception yesterday, is just the play for the successful reopening of the Broad-the successful reopen

"Alone in the World," judging from its reception yesterday, is just the play for the successful reopening of the Broad-Street house, and it will no doubt do a capacity business for the remainder of the week.

When the news spread over the city that an assassin concealed in the house had entered the bed-room of Mr. and Mrs. McCue. immediately upon their return from church, and had struck Mr. McCue with some heavy instrument and then fatally shot Mrs. McCue with a gun that was in the house, there was the wildest excitement and the very general feeling that no effort or expense should be spared to bring the guilty party to justice.

Until the mystery is fully cleared and the murderer apprehended, there will be felt a general apprehension and the good name of the city will rest under a cloud. When asked whether the murderer was a white or black man, Mr. McCue could not say. "He looked like a dirty tramp to me," said he last night, "but I cannot tell now. Either he was a light complexioned negro, probably a mulatto, or a dirty white man." This morning Mr. McCue is sure his assailant was a white man, but cannot give a description of him.

the murderer's capture, although the people are now at a fever heat of indignation, and will leave no stone unturned to bring the criminal to juatice. Should he be captured, there is but little doubt that justice will be meted out at once.

The crime is the most helmous in the annals of the city, and the first murder that has occurred since the Walters murder about the same time of season four years ago. It will be remembered that Mr. John L. Walters, city treasurer, was killed, but this murderer was cleared on d self-defense plea.

Mrs. McCue was forty-two years old, and would have been married nineteen years, had she lived until November that of this year. Her entire married life has seen spent in this city, where she was a léader in the social set.
